

Quaker Dialogue 11
Organised by London Quakers and the Art and Spirituality Network

Money, morality and values

Saturday, 16 March, 2013

Friends House, 173 Euston Road, London NW1 2BJ
(opposite Euston Station)

All are welcome to this event. You are welcome to attend just the morning session, or both morning and afternoon sessions. There is no charge for the morning session and no need to book. Places are limited on the afternoon session and you must book.

The Quaker Centre bookshop and café will be open until 3.30pm. You can buy lunch there or are welcome to bring your own.

Morning session: 10:30-13:00

London Quakers Dialogue 11: Money and Morality

- Changing our mindset about money - values, beliefs and assumptions - Judith Moran of Quaker Social Action
- The Right Use of Money - Danielle Walker Palmour of the Friends Provident Foundation
- Putting Money back in its box - Richard Murphy of Tax Research UK

Judith is director of Quaker Social Action, an anti-poverty charity based in east London and is on the board of The Equality Trust, working with the authors of The Spirit Level to show how unequal societies damage all of us.

Danielle is Director of Friends Provident Foundation. She is also a board member of Big Society Capital and a Trustee of Woodbrooke Quaker Studies Centre, and the Foundation for Credit Counselling.

Anti-poverty campaigner Richard is a qualified accountant with experience of running businesses. He was a founder of the Tax Justice Network and is director of Tax Research UK. His latest book 'Over here and under taxed' was published in February.

Afternoon session : 14:00 –17:00

Art and Spirituality Network: Value and values

An opportunity to reflect more personally on issues raised in the morning's dialogue and to explore how money fits with your spiritual and other values.

The workshop will be led by Linda Murgatroyd with Frances Bowman, Melvyn Freake, Elaine Giles and Isa Levy. We will be using silence, speech and kindergarten-simple arts and crafts activities. No experience necessary.

A charge of £5 for this workshop, to help cover expenses, will be collected at the door. However if you can't afford it, please say so and it will be waived.

Places for the afternoon workshop are limited so please book your place in advance. Early booking is helpful.
